

Model that is used of the study for values for geolocation

To make a comparison of values received from local services or distant services a model was used. It represent the interface with different fields filled with values that are sent from different services.

