Social networks

A script was found on the net about sending and receiving data from a social network. The heck is that there is a login and password. The solution was solved with the command that send over an encrypted link the two information.
Now a comparison should or must be done between two commands that do almost the same thing: wget and curl.

Data received from the web browser was stored locally and broadcaster to a twitter account.